“ I wrote this poem for my friend Leroy 10 years ago. He will be missed by all that knew him - Julie Meteraud

My Friend Leroy

*When he was four,
He was the neighbor boy who knocked on my door.*

*He came to visit a little each day,
Or with my children, he would play.*

*We moved away, his family followed us to street #24.
He was a neighbor again, so I was able to hear his (Hi-C) once more.*

*He grew up with my children attending the Salvation Army Corp.
Sometimes they would hang out or go to Kitch's Store.*

*He loved the song "Hit The Road Jack",
I can't count the times I heard that, I didn't keep track.*

*It seems he was always in the newspaper, not for something bad,
But for the good accomplishments he had.*

*He would ring bells and play the trumpet for those in need.
He collected money for many people to feed.*

*Oh, then there's his friend called Duane,
They fit together perfectly like a picture in a frame.*

*You always saw them out and about,
Best friends they were, there was no doubt.*

*His musical talents are incredible,
But I'm afraid his cooking is inedible.*

*His concerts at the church were truly a piece of good art.
He amazed his audience playing songs to praise the Lord with all his heart.*

*I missed him and his family when they moved to Berlin.
Now others share Leroy's good company within.*

*He has had a few medical problems to face.
God has helped him meet them with style and grace.*

*He is really great with a computer.
If he lived closer, I could use a tutor.*

*I hear he's taken up golf from his newsletter.
I hope his golf game is going better.*

*I also hear he takes good care of his van.
He sure has turned into a fine young man.*

“Leroy was such a kind hearted soul. We grew up together. Our families were neighbors and friends for many years. I remember going out to the country, riding in the back of his dad's green and white truck, back when we were allowed in the box. He always sang his "high cees" and said "hubba bubba." He always wore a smile and brought joy to everyone that knew him. He loved singing praises to the Lord. Leroy loved Jesus and everyone. You truly will be missed my dear friend. RIP Leroy
