“ I'm very sorry to hear this about you. You were my roommate in 2022 at the inpatient treatment we were at. What I liked about you was that fact you really didn't give any cares in the world about what any of the mean girls said to you. I give you a lot of credit for that. And you still remained respectful. Your one of a kind. Wish I would of given you more of my time. You got to the house as I was on my way out. So I wasn't there much. But I'm grateful for the time I did get with you.
I send my condolences to her family. Noone should have to bury their own child. Wish I knew how you left this world. I just hope you weren't alone. R.I.P

“ Such a sweetheart and never let anyone's opinion or differences change how she treated you. She'd stick up for a pencil that wasn't yellow and call it her best friend just to make a point. (Haha) She was the laugh and goofy-ness you needed in our world, especially in the dark world of being an addict. We sat in jail together and that might have been the only time I really got to know Tanya for who she really, really was sober... Being a red head, Tanya preferred to be called Ginger or Ging. She could really make light of any moment especially when it needed a little bit of Tanya in it. She had a love for people and even more love to make them laugh. She will be missed so terribly by MANY people. 🥺🙏👍

“ I was very close to Tanya because when I was being pushed around by my wife and her boyfriend Tanya wasn't having it and put them in their place. I talked to Tanya every Monday for the last month of her jail stay and was supposed to meet up with her when I returned home but for some reason she felt that life was too rough. I feel like if I were not away this wouldn't have happened but I can't change it and now gets to walk around in heaven with my wife who passed the same way in 2023. Tanya and my wife Melissa were my 2 best friends and I will miss Tanya every day. My condolences go out to every family member of Tanya's and I will keep you in my prayers. I can relate to each of you because my wife died 2 years ago and I'm still struggling with it. Keep your heads up and just know that even though her being gone hurts always know that she is in good hands with God and she's not hurting anymore. I'm sorry for your loss :(

“ I have so much respect and admiration for you, Tanya. Thank you for giving my son life, for staying clean through your pregnancy so he could be born healthy, and for loving him enough to want a different kind of life for him—even if it meant letting go. Your strength and selflessness are not lost on us.

Thank you for giving our family your blessing to love this boy with our whole hearts for the rest of our lives. We'll make sure he knows that you loved him—and that your love gave him a chance at something more.

You've always been, and always will be, part of his story.
